

Venus's adventure

There was a horse name Venus. She was a brave horse. She would always try to wander off, so it was no surprise when she wasn't there.

After a while, they started to worry because she was not back yet when she normally was.

They decided that tomorrow they would start the hunt for her. So they did. That morning they started to go into the woods.

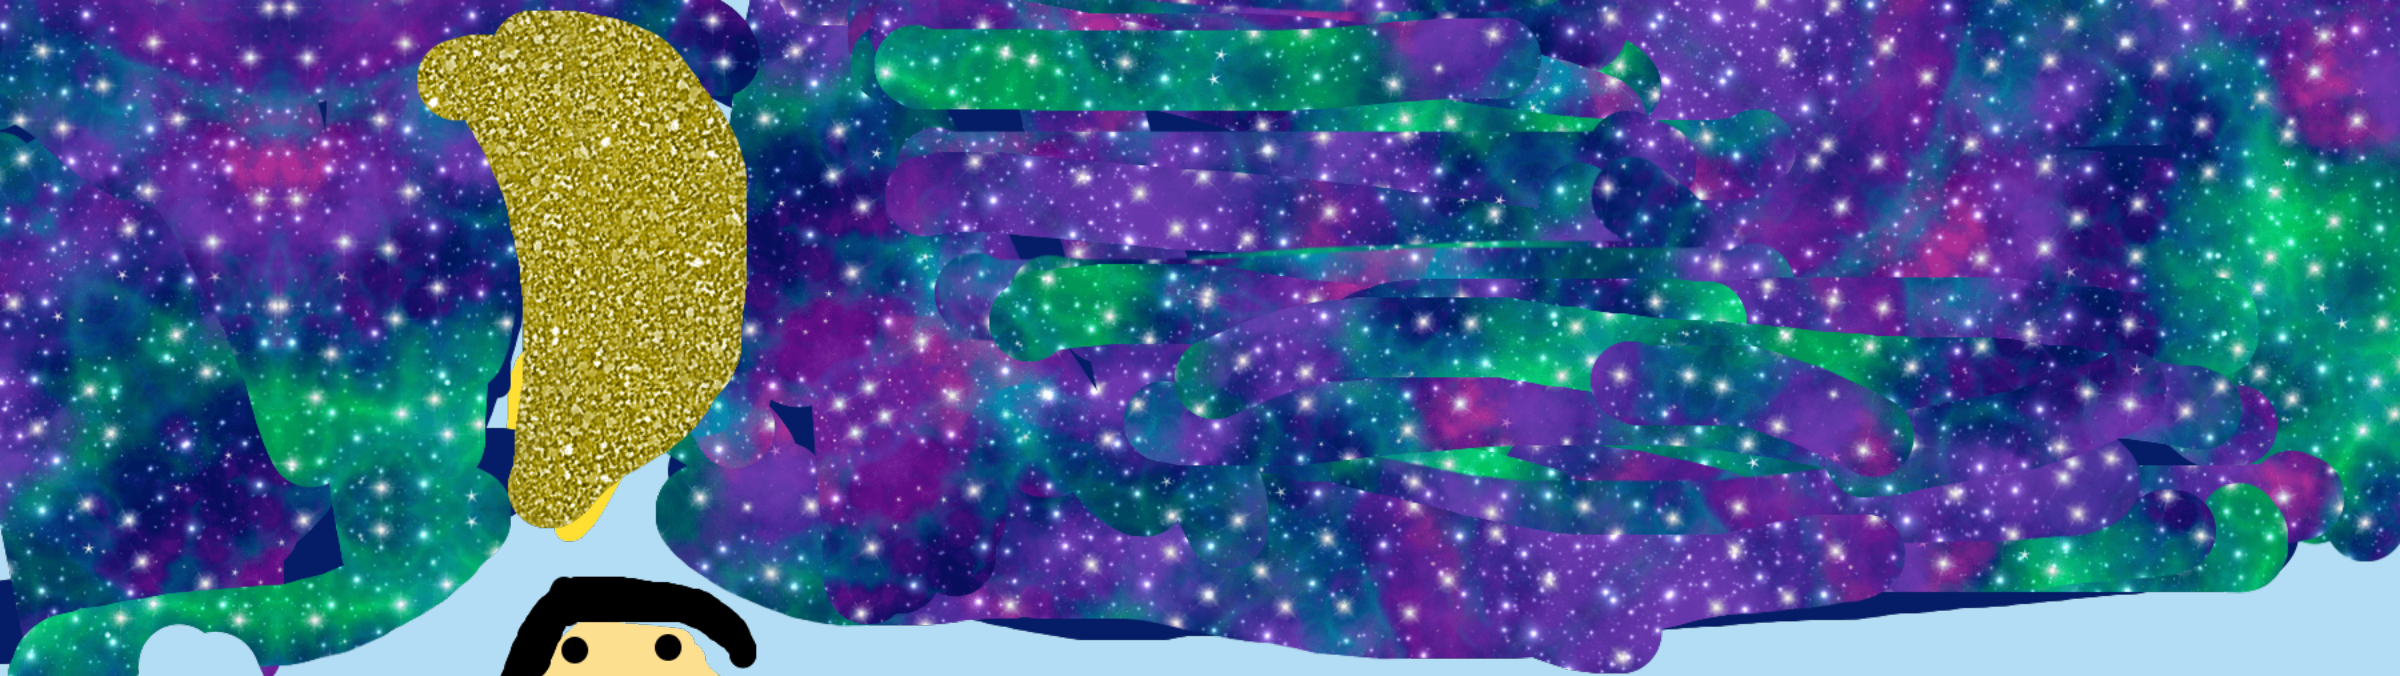

They had no luck when going through the woods so they went on to the city.

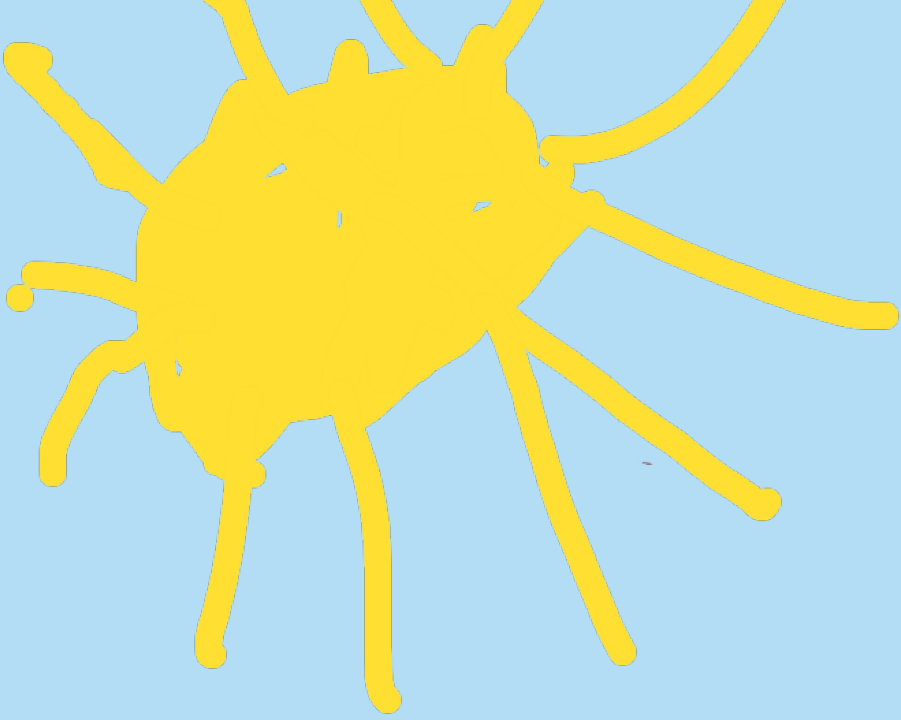

They had no sight of her yet. They then remembered her favorite drinking spot, the pond!

They did not find her there and it was getting late so the decided to go home.

The next morning they went outside and there she was!

The end!
